SUBJECT: DT 17-099, Northland Telephone Company: Intrastate Access Tariff Revisions and Waiver Request

TO: Commissioners
Debra Howland, Executive Director

CC: David Wiesner, Staff Attorney

Executive Summary

Northland Telephone Company (Northland) seeks to have its intrastate access tariff revised, lowering a particular rate element to zero. Northland also requests two waivers allowing this tariff revision to take effect on July 1, 2017. Staff recommends allowing the tariff to take effect as filed, and recommends approval of the first waiver request. The second waiver request appears to be unnecessary.

Background

On June 14, 2017, Northland submitted a filing to revise its intrastate access tariff for effect on July 1, 2017, pursuant to the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) Report and Order FCC 11-161 (Transformation Order). The revisions in this filing would set intrastate access rates equal to current interstate access rates, and in particular reduce the rate for "Local Switching: Terminating" service to zero.

Northland seeks a waiver of Puc 1603.07(a)(1), which requires 30 days' notice before a tariff change becomes effective. Northland also requests a waiver of Puc 1604.05(d), which requires a utility to formally request a waiver allowing a tariff to take effect before the 30 days have elapsed. In Staff's assessment, this second waiver is unnecessary, because the June 14th filing itself meets the requirement of 1604.05(d). Northland notes that the schedule and general terms of these annual intrastate access revisions have been known to the Commission and the public since 2011.

Northland is treated as a "price cap carrier" rather than a "rate of return carrier" under FCC rules. As such, its tariff rate elements are subject to different FCC caps and rules. As the Northland filing explains, delays in reaching "industry consensus" regarding the treatment of tandem switched transport rates prevented Northland from making an earlier filing.
